God of War vs Percy Jackson

by SonicPhantom47

Summary: Kronos has been destroyed, but not his soul. Now needing a new body, he desires to take Percy Jackson's, yet he needs him to be dead. With no one else strong enough to kill him, he tricks the God of War, Kratos, into fighting Percy and killing him. Now as he is on the run with his friends, Percy Jackson must face the greatest battle of demigods there may be, or he will face death.

1. Deception

You may not know this, but the Greek Gods and everything about Greek mythology are real.

There are demigods living among us.

Yet what you may not know is that there may be other worlds where there are other demigods as well

But in this world, the most famous of them is Percy Jackson, the son of Poseidon.

He was the one who had assisted in defeating the evil Kronos after he rose from Tartarus and attempted to destroy Olympus.

Kronos was destroyed and finally the world was at peace.

Percy Jackson now lives in Camp-Half Blood, with all the other Demigods.

Things looked like they were back to the way they were.

But it wasn't.

It was impossible, but somehow Kronos soul did not die.

It survived being destroyed, and it was living amongst us.

No one knew about this, not even the gods.

But now Kronos, fueled with revenge, vowed to return to life.

But he knew he needed a vessel to take over, and he had only one in mind.

He wanted the body of Percy Jackson, knowing that he was the strongest of them all, and he wanted to the strength.

But he knew he needed Percy dead to take him, knowing he would not come willingly.

Yet the only problem was that he knew no one in the world that would be capable of killing him.

He knew the gods would not do it, for they had no reason to kill him.

Kronos, for once, was beginning to lose hope, but then he found his answer.

While traveling within time and space, he found another universe with someone who was capable of enough strength to kill Percy Jackson.

And he knew he could get him to.

>Kronos traveled to this world, which was practically another land of Mount Olympus.

He went straight to the ruins of Mount Olympus, and found what he needed.

The body of the very demigod who destroyed Mount Olympus lie on the floor, not decaying at all.

The body belonged to the very God of War, Kratos, himself.

And in this world, Kronos knew he was the son of Zeus.

However, Kratos had killed Zeus, and Kronos knew if he was capable of that, then he could truly destroy Percy Jackson.

His vessel floated above Kratos' body, for it was not dead.

It was just weakened into being unable to heal.

Kronos then tapped Kratos' chest where a stab wound was, and it healed faster than any wound.

"Arise now Kratos!" yelled Kronos. "Arise, God of War!"

Kratos' eyes suddenly popped open and he stood immediately up on his feet, drawing his two blades on chains.

"Whâ€¦what?" asked Kratos. "Where am I?"

"You're in the same place you have been since you killed Zeus," said a voice. "Mount Olympus."

Kratos turned and saw a red shadowy figure in the shape of a phantom.

"Who are you!?" yelled Kratos.

"I am Kronos," said Kronos. "God of Time. King of the Titans."

"Kronos?" asked Kratos. "I killed you!"

"Wrong," said Kronos. "You killed the Kronos from this world."

"What are you saying?" asked Kratos.

"I am a Kronos from a different universe," said Kronos. "Like a multiverse."

"That's impossible!" yelled Kratos.

"Not for a god who rules time and space," said Kronos.

Kratos looked at Kronos' vessel, and then at his own hands.

"My godly powers are restored," he said. "Why have you awaken me Kronos?"

"There is another demigod in the world I come from," said Kronos. "And he claims to be stronger than you and any other demigod."

"WHAT!?" yelled Kratos. "THAT'S IMPOSSIBLE!"

"It's not impossible," said Kronos. "Because that demigod killed me."

Kratos was shocked.

"He killed you?" he asked.

"He's the son of Poseidon," said Kronos. "And he killed me. And now he brags about being better than any other demigod."

Kratos was now fuming.

"So this little brat thinks he's better than anyone else?" asked Kratos annoyingly. "Even better than me when no one knows I exist!?"

"Indeed," said Kronos. "What will you do about this?"

Kratos gripped his swords.

"I'm going to challenge this demigod," he said. "AND I AM GOING TO KILL HIM!"

"Then let me help you!" said Kronos.

His eyes blinked and a portal opened up.

"This is the world he lives in," said Kronos. "He resides at a camp called Camp-Half Blood. It's protected by a shield, but since you a demigod you can pass through it."

Kratos smiled and sheathed his sword, ready to jump through.

"And what is his name?" he asked.

"His name is Percy Jackson," said Kronos. "Now go demigod! Prove who is better! Destroy Percy Jackson!"

Kratos nodded and jumped through the portal.

>Kronos was left all alone, which gave him the opportunity to laugh out loudly.

So loud that even as a spirit, it was booming.

"Percy Jackson cannot possibly stand up to Kratos!" he laughed. "He will die, and then finally I will be reborn within him!"

He laughed out loudly as Kratos headed to start a battle that Percy Jackson would be pulled into innocently.

>I know what you are thinking. Yes I am in the middle of writing four stories already. But I am almost finished with one and another one will be somewhat short. And I also just finished the fourth Percy Jackson book today and I had this idea to write this. Besides after seeing so many Percy and Annabeth love fanfictions, I wanted to write this. Do not judge or criticize my story for I have not played God of War! Please. I also didn't read the final Percy Jackson book, yet I know how Kronos dies.

Anyway I hope you all who are new to me enjoy this. See you next update! Review please!

   2. Attack on Camp-Half Blood

Percy was fast asleep on the beach at Camp-Half Blood.

He came here after practice to lay down and soak in the sun.

He loved being near the water, being the son of Poseidon.

It was the one place he could lay quietly and relax.

He was dreaming a perfect dream, that involved him and Annabeth having a picnic, literally underwater in a big bubble.

It was beautiful, until suddenly the dream took a bad turn.

Something suddenly appeared in his dream.

From the distance, he could see a figure cloaked in red light coming towards him, spinning swords on chains.

The water around the two of them disappeared and they were now standing on a mountainous pathway.

Percy reached into his pocket to grab his sword, Riptide, but for some reason the pen wasn't there.

It was always supposed to be there.

But before he could do anything, the figure lashed out one of it's swords and it impaled Annabeth in the stomach.

"ANNABETHHHH!" he yelled out.

"Perâ€¦cy," Annabeth groaned weakly as blood dripped from her stomach.

Percy reached out for her hand as she did the same, but then the figure pulled on the sword and took Annabeth with it.

Percy watched as the figure grabbed the sword as it flung behind it and pulled on it, making Annabeth fly out into the distance much to Percy horror.

Percy began backing up as the figure came closer.

He then tripped back and fell, and the figure appeared right over him.

"YOUR FATE IS SEALED!" yelled the figure as he prepared to strike.

"NOOOOOO!" Percy yelled out covering his face.

>Just then Percy awoke with a start, as water was spilled on his face.

Without hesitation Percy jumped to his feet and he quickly reached for Riptide.

He uncapped the sword and swung it towards the person behind him.

"Whoa! Whoa!" yelled the person. "Relax Seaweed Brain! It's me!"

Percy rubbed his eyes and saw Annabeth smiling at him laughing, even though there was a sword pointed at her throat.

"Oh," stammered Percy. "Sorry babe."

He capped Riptide which turned back into a pen and looked at Annabeth who was holding a water satchel.

"You were shaking like crazy when I found you," said Annabeth. "So I poured water on your head to wake you up."

"Ohâ€¦that," said Percy. "Sorryâ€¦bad dream."

"Awâ€¦" Annabeth teased. "Does someone need a hug?"

Percy giggled.

"How about a kiss?" he asked.

Annabeth smiled and shook her head.

"Oh you, Seaweed Brain," she said.

She then embraced Percy and kissed his lips.

Percy couldn't help but hug her and kiss her tightly.

He had just dreamed that a monster killed her.

Or whatever that thing was.

Annabeth then broke away from Percy and smiled.

"We better get going," she said. "I came here to tell you you'll be late for Capture the Flag."

"Ohâ€¦right!" said Percy. "Of course! Wouldn't want to missâ€¦"

Before he could finish, a loud boom was heard from the other side of camp.

It startled both of them.

"What the hell?" asked Annabeth.

"What was that?" asked Percy.

Following another boom came the sound of campers screaming.

"Oh god!" yelled Percy. "There's something attacking the camp!"

"That's impossible!" yelled Annabeth. "No monster can get through the barrier!"

Another boom was heard, now with the sound of buildings getting destroyed.

"You were saying?" asked Percy as he was already running and uncapping Riptide again.

Annabeth quickly took off with him.

>When they got back to camp, campers were running amok.

"PERCY! ANNABETH!" yelled a voice.

The two turned and saw Grover running right at them.

"Grover!" yelled Percy. "You're okay!"

"Yeah I'm okay!" stated Grover. "Ain't nobody killing this satyr yet!"

"What's going on!?" yelled Annabeth. "What kind of monster could get through the barrier?"

"This isn't a monster!" said Grover. "It's some kind of warlord or barbarian! He's got gray skin and is swinging two swords on chains destroying every cabin."

Percy's eyes went wide at the words swords on chains.

"Clarisse went with some of the others including Chiron in hopes of trying to reason with this maniac," said Grover.

"You honestly think they can reason with this guy if he's causing this much chaos?" asked Percy.

"With a little brute force involving restraining," said Grover. "I think they canâ€¦"

Before he could finish, something landed right in front of the three.

They all jumped, and then saw it was Clarisse.

"Jesus!" yelled Annabeth. "You got beaten!?"

"This guyâ€¦" stammered Clarisse who was just thrown across the camp. "He's not normal! He's nothingâ€¦like anyone we've faced!"

"Stay here," said Percy. "We'll deal with this."

Percy ran off and Annabeth and Grover followed.

>Soon enough they made it to where the attacker was.

The field was filled with defeated campers and along with Chiron.

Other campers were standing around just staring at the thing.

Percy managed to get through and see the creature.

He was shocked at what he saw.

The figure was exactly the same one from his dream.

The one that killed Annabeth and almost killed him.

He was gray skinned with red markings, and wearing pieces of armor.

He had two swords that were on chains, and he was beyond angry.

For a while, everyone was just staring at him.

Then the stranger spoke.

"I SEEK PERCY JACKSON!" he yelled. "WHERE IS HE!?"

Few campers looked around for Percy yet they tried not to show it, but Percy's heart was beating so fast.

"Hey look here bud!" said a voice.

Everyone turned as Mr. D came walking out and towards the creature.

Everyone told him to come back, for it was a terrible idea.

Yet he didn't listen.

"See here," Dionysus said to the stranger. "There is no Peter Jackson here. So why don't you tell us instead how you got through theâ€¦"

Before he could finish, the stranger elbowed Dionysus in the face and sent him flying across the forest.

Everyone was shocked. This stranger was not even afraid to touch and hurt a god.

"If you must know!" yelled the stranger. "My name is Kratos! God of War and Son of Zeus!"

Everyone was shocked.

"So that's how he got through the gate," said Annabeth. "This Kratos is a demigod!"

"But I thought Thalia was the only child of Zeus," said Grover.

"ONCE AGAIN!" yelled Kratos. "I SEEK OUT PERCY JACKSON, SON OF POSEIDON! AND IF HE DOES NOT GIVE HIMSELF UPâ€¦"

He then reached behind his back and revealed to be holding Tyson, Percy's Cyclopes brother, by the neck.

"Then I will start killing each of you," he said. "Starting with this one who attacked me first!"

"Percy!" yelled Tyson. "Don't worry about me bro! Don'tâ€¦"

Kratos gave Tyson a little squeeze which made him cough.

"SILENCE MONSTER!" he yelled.

Percy couldn't take it anymore.

He watched this man kill Annabeth in his dreams, and he was not going to let him kill anyone else.

>Percy stepped forward towards Kratos.

"Percy no!" yelled Annabeth.

"Don't do it Percy!" yelled Chiron who was on the ground.

Kratos saw Percy walking towards him and smiled.

"Put my brother down!" yelled Percy.

Kratos looked at Tyson and let him go.

Tyson ran to join the campers, patting him on the shoulder as a way of saying "Good Luck."

Percy then stared at the massive demigod in front of him.

He clutched Riptide tightly.

"Son of Poseidon," said Kratos. "I've been looking for you!"

"Who are you really?" asked Percy. "You can't be the child of Zeus. Zeus already hasâ€¦"

"SILENCE!" boomed Kratos, making Percy tremble with fear. "I didn't come here to talk!"

"Then what did you come for?" asked Percy.

Kratos smiled.

"Isn't it obvious?" he asked. "You. I came for you. You were the one who defeated Kronos."

"Ummm," stammered Percy. "Well actuallyâ€¦"

"And now you are considered to be the most powerful and strongest demigod ever," said Kratos.

"Wow!" said Percy. "Really?"

"And I am here to prove that you are gravely mistaken," said Kratos. "And to show you that it is I who is the most powerful of them, I am going to kill you!"

Percy's smiled immediately faded.

Kratos then grabbed his swords and lunged at Percy.

"PREPARE TO DIE SON OF POSEIDON!" yelled Kratos.

Percy just yelled out and prepared for an attack.

>Percy and Kratos have met and are about to battle. In other words, I was actually excited to be able to have Annabeth call Percy Seaweed Brain, and have Mr. D does his stuff. I am liking this, yet I hope people will read it.

    3. Round 1

Percy yelled out as Kratos charged at him.

"ROUND 1 JACKSON!" yelled Kratos. "FIGHT!"

He swung his swords and prepared to attack.

Percy as quickly as he could dodged Kratos' attack by doing a somersault.

However, Kratos reacted quickly and threw his left sword at Percy.

Percy quickly reacted to the first thing he could, which was hold up his sword.

He managed to maneuver it to the side and barely miss his face, but cut off pieces of his hair.

But then Kratos pulled on the chain and sent the sword flying back at him, knocking Percy off his feet.

Kratos grabbed both his sword and charged at Percy.

He saw this and then began to run.

But Kratos was faster and he managed to get in front of Percy.

"No escape!" he yelled holding his swords above his head.

He swung down and Percy blocked it barely.

He then pushed Kratos back and took swings at him.

Kratos blocked every one on of them, making Percy kind of agitated.

Kratos kicked Percy hard in the stomach that it almost felt like all the wind would blow right out of him.

He was pushed back into a tree.

He stood up but then Kratos threw his swords at the tree and they stuck in it.

He then pulled hard, and the entire tree came out of the ground and towards Kratos, with Percy clinging onto it still.

He yelled out as he came towards Kratos, who threw back his fists.

Kratos then double punched him so hard, the tree exploded and Percy thought his guts exploded.

He was sent flying into the dirt.

"PERCY!" Annabeth and Grover yelled.

Percy attempted to grab Riptide, but Kratos stepped on his arm reaching for it, and then his stomach.

"And to think you defeated Kronos!" yelled Kratos. "It amazes me!"

"Leave him alone you bully!" yelled Annabeth who was now behind him with Grover and had blades drawn.

Kratos turned around, which made him take his foot off of Percy's arm.

"You fools will not interfere!" yelled Kratos.

He clutched his swords and prepared to attack.

But then suddenly, he yelled out as he felt pain from below.

Percy has grabbed Riptide and stabbed Kratos right in his crotch.

"And you won't lay a hand on them!" yelled Percy.

He continued to attempt to shove Riptide into Kratos, but it wasn't going through.

No matter how many times he twisted it or tried to shove it, it barely went through, only making Kratos feel the pain of how it would hurt him.

But then that pain turned into a laugh.

He looked down at Percy and smiled.

"It's going to take much more than a puny sword to defeat the God of War!" he yelled. "I may not be immortal, BUT I AM HARD TO KILL!"

He then stomped down hard on Percy's stomach that it literally made a crater in the ground.

Percy spat out blood, which lead to him vomiting with blood in it.

Kratos was about to stomp down again, but Percy managed to roll away quickly enough.

With enough strength he managed to stand up.

Kratos swung at him and he barely blocked the attack.

Knowing he was weak, Kratos threw his sword which stabbed another tree.

But then he pulled on it and spun around Percy, and with that Percy was tangled up in the chains.

He struggled to break free, but that did nothing,

Kratos then took his sword and swung Percy around in circles.

Percy yelled out as he was spinning, and then Kratos untangled him and made him fly across the camp.

Annabeth yelled out at that and Kratos raced after where he went.

The whole camp followed, hoping that Percy wasn't dead.

>Percy flew across the camp, yelling out loudly.

He was so weak and his bones felt like they were going to snap.

He then went headfirst into the lake, going under.

He then realized he was in water, and he found his strength.

Kratos had arrived at the lake just as Percy went headfirst in.

The camp arrived soon after as Kratos approached the lake.

"If he is not dead," he said. "Then I will drench the lake until I find his body!"

He laughed out loudly, but then suddenly the water rose into the air.

Kratos stopped laughing and saw Percy standing on the water that rose.

He was perfectly healed and looked stronger than before.

Kratos grunted.

"Son of Poseidon," he growled.

"You're damn right I am!" yelled Percy.

With Riptide glowing bright, he was launched off the water and towards Kratos with his sword held high.

Kratos yelled and prepared to swing at Percy.

They both then collided, and a big wave of light was formed.

Kratos yelled out loud as Percy overpowered him.

"He's much more powerful than before!" Kratos yelled in his mind.

He was so powerful that he actually sent Kratos into the ground, making him stuck in there chest deep.

Kratos struggled to break free while Percy stood over him.

The camp was cheering.

"Guess I am the strongest," he mocked.

Kratos was glaring at him.

"Noâ€¦YOU AREN'T!" he yelled.

He then took his sword which were underground and then began to spin in a circle.

He made himself into a drill and broke free.

"THIS IS NOT OVER PERCY JACKSON!" he yelled. "I'LL BE BACK! MARK MY WORDS, NO MATTER WHERE YOU ARE OR WHERE YOU GO, I WILL DESTROY YOU IF IT'S THE LAST THING I DO!"

He then launched himself high into the sky, went through the barrier, and disappeared far out.

>Everyone cheered for Percy, and Annabeth came up and kissed him so hard.

"You did it Seaweed Brain!" she cried. "You did it!"

Percy did not reply at all. He looked dazed.

"Percy?" asked Annabeth.

Percy then collapsed on the ground and let go of Riptide.

"PERCY!" yelled Annabeth.

Grover and Chiron ran up as Annabeth shook Percy.

"Percy no!" yelled Annabeth. "You can'tâ€¦"

"Relax Annabeth," said Grover as he checked Percy. "He's not dead."

Annabeth sighed in relief.

"Oh thank gods," she said.

"He just needs to rest and recover," said Chiron. "But we need to deal with this Kratos while he is."

Annabeth nodded and picked up Percy and carried him to the infirmary.

Percy lied in Annabeth's arms, recovering from a battle that he knew wouldn't be the last.

4. Only Option

Percy had fully recovered in the infirmary and was now with Annabeth and Grover meeting with Chiron.

"So what's the deal with this Kratos?" asked Percy.

"Apparently he wants to kill you," said Annabeth.

"Yeah I figured much," said Percy. "But who is he? He can't be the child of Zeus. Thalia was the child of Zeus."

"Yes indeed," said Chiron. "I have never seen this Kratos before, and it could be possible he doesn't even exist."

"So what are you saying?" asked Grover. "We're dealing with a ghost?"

"Not a ghost," said Annabeth. "But what if this Kratos was from somewhere that doesn't exist in this world?"

"We don't have time for these crazy ideas!" yelled Percy. "My life is at stake!"

"Well all we know is that this Kratos is a demigod," said Chiron. "And apparently he holds a grudge on Percy and thinks that he killed Kronos and want to prove he is better by killing him."

"Well I'm not letting that happen!" said Annabeth hugging Percy. "I'm not going to lose my boyfriend to this Kratos!"

"Well how are we going do protect him?" asked Grover. "This Kratos is no going to stop until he chops Percy to pieces!"

Percy looked at Grover frightfully.

"Sorry," said Grover.

"He's right," said Chiron. "And we cannot have Kratos coming back and endangering the campers."

"So what do you propose?" asked Percy.

Chiron headed towards his desk and began rummaging through papers and drawers.

"What…are you…?" Percy began to ask.

"Shhhh!" said Chiron as he unloaded papers onto his desk. "I am thinking!"

The three watched as he rummaged through the pile and examined different maps and sheets.

"I need to find an apartment in the city for you all," said Chiron.

"What?" asked Percy.

"I'm send you three out of the camp to go into hiding," said Chiron. "You stay here and Kratos will endanger everyone. Someone will get killed."

"You make it sound like this is my fault," said Percy.

"Don't worry," said Chiron. "I'm going to make sure Kratos cannot follow you or find you."

"And what if Kratos comes back?" asked Annabeth.

"We'll be able to capture him and final question him while he's trying to find you throughout the camp," said Chiron.

"I guess…that's the only option for right now," said Percy.

Chiron handed them a map, money, and keys.

"There is an apartment in Washington D.C. for you guys to hide out in," he said.

"D.C.?" asked Percy. "Are you sure that it's the safest place? The freakin' president does live there. I don't want him getting involved with this!"

"Trust me Percy," said Chiron. "This is all we have for right now."

"Come one Percy," said Annabeth holding his hand. "This should be for the best for right now."

"We'll pack up and be ready by tonight," said Grover.

Chiron nodded.

"Off with y'all," he said.

The three nodded and walked out.

>Percy kept feeling worried that this wasn't a good idea, or maybe this was all a set up.

He knew this was meant to set up Kratos so the camp could capture him, but no matter what he knew what Kratos was capable off.

But still he knew he needed to get away from the camp.

"We'll all meet by the gateway tonight," said Grover.

Annabeth turned Percy towards her and kissed his lips.

"Be safe no matter what, Seaweed Brain," she said smiling.

Percy couldn't help but smile.

He then ran off to start packing.
